Authoritative Literary Criticism from Harold Bloom

Bloom's Literary Reference Online features hundreds of Harold Bloom's essays examining the lives and works of great writers throughout history and the world, as well as thousands of critical articles by noted scholars from the Bloom's Literary Criticism imprint. With an archive of more than 42,000 characters and extensive entries on literary topics, themes, movements, and genres, the database contains thousands of entries and almost 170 video segments.

Helpful features for students abound. The "Bloom's How to Write about" section contains essays on how to write about literature, including crafting strong thesis statements and conclusions, writing outlines, properly citing sources, and sample essay topics. Links for popularly assigned authors list essays about the authors and their works. "How to Cite" guidance includes full citations in MLA, Chicago, and APA style, and the dictionary tool allows users to look up more than 34,000 words without opening a new browser window.

Handy browse and search features include in-text links, record links, and numerous options for further research. Entries can be browsed by time period within American, British, and world literature; by author type; by literary genre; by nationality; by an A-to-Z list; and by subject for images and videos. Author biographies link to a list of major works, and works are linked to a list of principal characters.

Features:

- Authors: biographies of thousands of authors from around the world, browsable by nationality, type of writing, or time periods ranging from ancient to modern
- Works: overviews, synopses, analyses, and literary criticism of thousands of works—from novels to poetry to plays—browsable by genre and time period or alphabetically
- Images and Videos: many images of authors as well as video segments covering a range of topics—from biographies of writers to critical analyses of plays to literary genres

- Topics and Themes: in-depth, full-text entries on literary movements, literary groups, magazines and newspapers, and historical events that help place literature in context, as well as definitions of literary terms
- Timeline: more than 15,000 entries on births, deaths, publications, and events in world literature from the ancient era to the present day
- Dictionary: more than 34,000 entries with concise, informative definitions, many with pronunciation, etymology, and syllable breaks of the word
- Characters: information on more than 42,000 major and minor literary characters, including where they first appeared, what part they played in the plot, and how they are related to other literary characters
- Bloom's How to Write about: essays on how to write about literature, including essays by Harold Bloom on popularly assigned authors
- Harold Bloom's Western Canon: Professor Bloom's selections of the major works of Western literature.
